

Masahiro Kawai is ADBI's dean and CEO. He was previously head of the ADB's Office of Regional Economic Integration and concurrently special advisor to the ADB president in charge of regional economic cooperation and integration. Before that he was in the academia, first as an associate professor of economics at The Johns Hopkins University and later as a professor of economics at the University of Tokyo. He also served as chief economist for the World Bank's East Asia and the Pacific Region and as deputy vice minister for international affairs of Japan's Ministry of Finance. His recent publications focus on economic regionalism. He holds a BA in economics from the University of Tokyo and a PhD in economics from Stanford University.