

Integrating Asian Economies

Integrating Asian Economies

- Study coverage
- Southeast Asia
 - 10 ASEAN members
- East Asia
 - People's Rep. of China
 - Hong Kong, China
 - Japan
 - Korea
 - Taipei, China
- South Asia
 - India

Main Messages

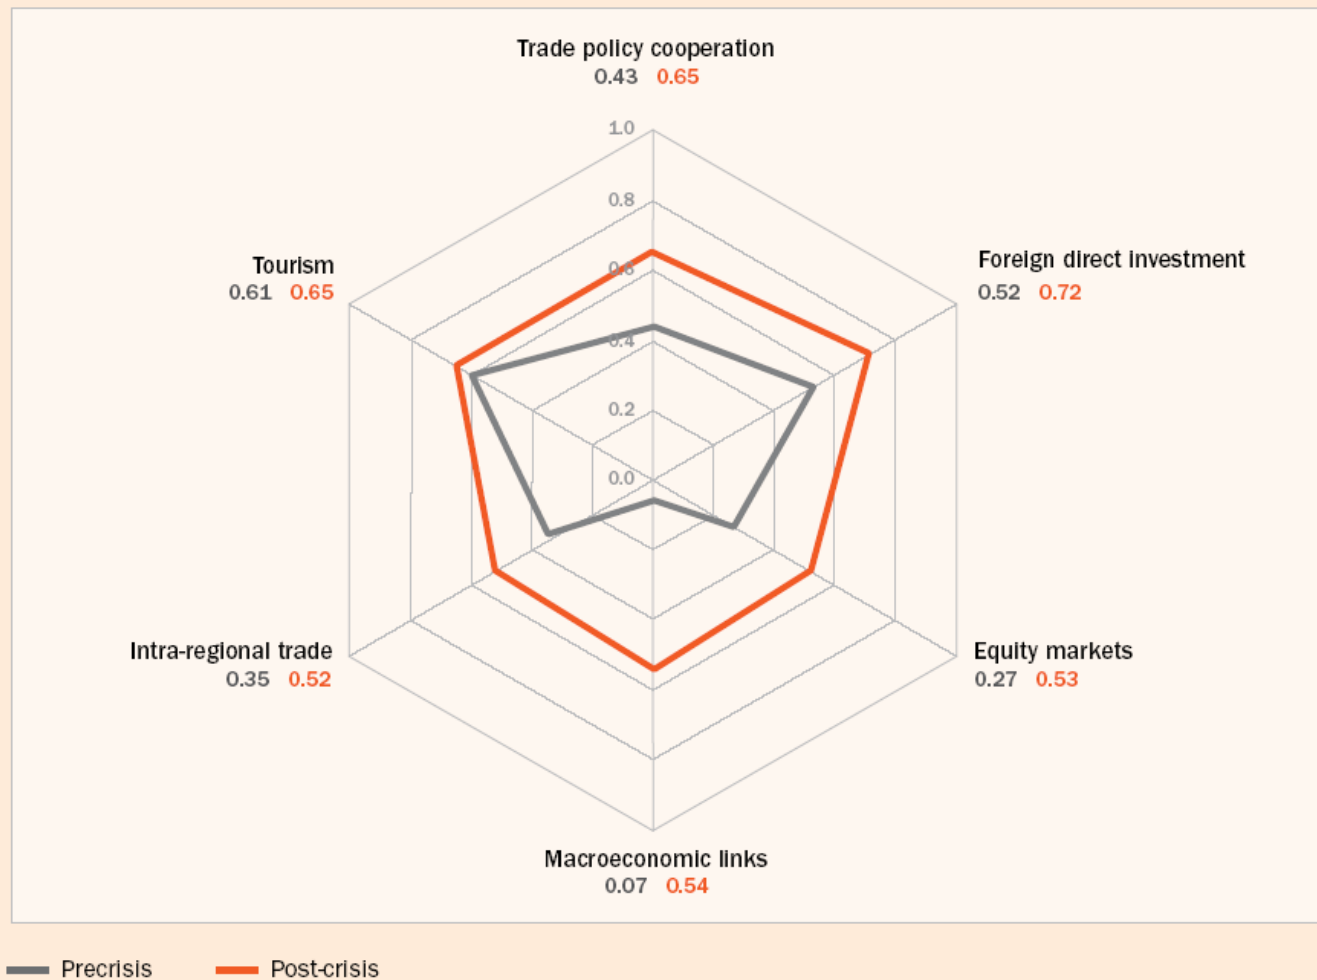

- Asian integration is rapid, broad, with global links
- Asian Financial Crisis of 1997/98 was a watershed
- Cooperation is accelerating, but needs more focus
- Asian regionalism will be distinctive: outward-oriented, multi-speed, multi-track, pragmatic
- Regionalism is good for Asia, good for the world

Priorities and Approaches

- Trade and investment
- Financial systems
- Macroeconomic links
- Social and environmental issues
- Cooperation: style, scope, speed

All Indicators of Integration are Rising

The Logic of Regional Collective Action

- Providing new regional public goods
- Managing spillovers among economies
- Exercising Asia's influence in global economic forums
- Liberalizing trade and investment
- Adding value to national policy making

Asia's trade integration is comparable to Europe-North America

Integrating Production and Trade

Building an Asian economic community: the way forward

Priorities

- Enhance investment in and the productivity of regional economies
- Strengthen comparative advantage derived from integrated regional production chains
- Promote technological upgrading and development of a knowledge economy

Policy solutions

- Support the global trading system
- Pursue regional cooperation as widely and deeply as possible
- Develop guidelines for best practices in subregional trade agreements
- Enhance regional connectivity

Financial Integration is Less Advanced, but Under Way: Price Indicators

Capital accounts still not completely liberalized
Developing local-currency-denominated bond markets

Integrating Financial Markets

Building an Asian economic community: the way forward

Priorities

- Increase resilience against financial crises
- Develop larger, deeper regional financial markets
- Improve returns for investors and reduce capital costs to firms by strengthening the regional intermediation of savings

Policy solutions

- Improve financial market surveillance and create an “Asian Financial Stability Dialogue”
- Promote consistent standards and mutual recognition
- Strengthen financial markets (especially including local currency bond markets) and their infrastructure
- Liberalize capital accounts and cross-border financial services prudently

Deepening Macroeconomic Interdependence

Needing Adjustments Ahead

Figure 8. Declining investment and rising current account surpluses
(simple average of the 5 most crisis-affected Asian countries)

Managing Macroeconomic Interdependence

Building an Asian economic community: the way forward

Priorities

- Increase macroeconomic and exchange rate stability
- Smoothen global economic adjustments, including reallocation of the region's external savings to regional demand
- Increase investment and growth in slower-growing economies

Policy solutions

- Make macroeconomic consultation and surveillance more effective by creating an Asian Secretariat for Economic Cooperation
- Strengthen Asia's short-term financing facility (Chiang Mai Initiative)
- Cooperate in exchange rate and macroeconomic policy management

Many are Still Left Behind

Several major groups have been left behind

Labor market and investment policies can help alleviate poverty and exclusion

Increased migration can produce large social benefits

Managing threats to health and safety is a priority

Fighting Poverty and Exclusion

(changes in the Gini index)

Making Growth Inclusive and Sustainable

Building an Asian economic community: the way forward

Priorities

- Reduce poverty and income disparities
- Improve social safety nets and provide support for the aged
- Fight epidemics and mitigate the impact of disasters
- Address environmental issues

Policy solutions

- Connect the poor to the thriving regional economy
- Develop cost-effective social protection systems
- Facilitate and manage labor migration
- Protect regional health and safety
- Make development sustainable

Regionalism with Asian Characteristics

- Outward-oriented, multi-speed, multi-track, pragmatic, bottom-up
- Develop deeper institutional capabilities
- ASEAN, ASEAN+3, and EAS as the strategic regional forums
- Empower bottom-up leadership (coalitions and civil society)
- Pursue long-term goals through constructive, pragmatic steps

Regional and Transregional Forums

A Partnership for Shared Prosperity

- Asian economies in the long run are likely to have
 - a single market
 - deep and liquid financial markets
 - effective macroeconomic policy coordination frameworks
 - a common currency
 - workers moving much more freely than today
 - collective efforts to address social issues
 - stronger voice in global policy forums
 - more regional institutions
